

On September 11th, 2001, terrorists attacked the United States by hijacking four commercial airliners and using them as guided bombs.

Because of the courage and initiative of her passengers, Flight 93 never reached its target in Washington DC. As passengers struggled to thwart the hijacking, the plane crashed into a Western Pennsylvania field. In this field, a monument has been raised to honor the passengers and crew of United Airlines Flight 93.
